- Add calendar items, delete calendar items or change calendar items To place a long string of text inside a TextBox, including formatting such as Bold, Italic, etc., you can use the RichTextBox control's InputSteam property to get the text to display and then override its properties. DateTime date = DateTime.Today; //Grab a reference to the RichTextBox //RichTextBox

rtb = (RichTextBox)MainWindow.FindForm().Controls["RichTextBox1"]; //Inside a while loop, you can use the.ToString() function to manipulate the date //Format it in a textbox with.ToString("ddd, DD MMMM yyyy HH:mm:ss") //Add the original date to the output string, formatted as you like rtb.InputStream.Position = 0; rtb.InputStream.Seek(0, SeekOrigin.Begin); rtb.InputStream.Seek(0, SeekOrigin.Begin); rtb.Text = date.ToString("ddd, DD MMMM yyyy HH:mm:ss"); rtb.InputStream.Seek(0, SeekOrigin.Begin); rtb.InputStream.Seek(0, SeekOrigin.Begin); Create a form based on a template, then add text controls to it Add controls to the form MSDN Article: TextBox.Text Its main purpose is to get easier ways to tell Visual Basic what you want to do, instead of having to tell it with the same old, boring and long way that you have been doing things. When we first started out with Visual Basic and programming in general, we needed to focus on the basics:
what to do next, how to make it work, how to create a form, a bit of b7e8fdf5c8
